Frederick Whittemore's Left Hand Maimed by Circular Saw—Seized Liquors Ordered Destroyed—James McMahon, Who Admits that He Slapped George H. Clark's Face Real Hard, Gets Six Months in Jail—Coon-Bingham Marriage.

More liquor seizure cases were disposed of by Judge Oliver H. Williams at Friday's session of the Third district court. The first was against the liquor seized on the premises of Peter Whittier, 22 John street. Deputy Chief Brown testified that with Chief Brandfield and Policeman West, he assisted in the raid and seizure. The room and took to the police station half a barrel of beer, fifteen bottles of lager, one gallon jug containing whiskey, three gallon jug of wine, gallon jug of rum and a pint bottle of whiskey and another of rum. Judge Williams declared the liquor forfeited to the state and authorized the issue of warrant for their destruction.

Then came the case against liquors seized at Patrick Holliday's, 55 Granite street. Deputy Chief Brown testified that with Chief Brandfield and Policeman Mitchell, raid was made on the premises. A barrel of beer was found in the cellar, with pipes leading to a faucet in the room above. This barrel was seized. It contained about eighteen gallons of beer. Also were entered three men left the house. Beer was found in a straining pall, and here glasses were washed. Policeman Mitchell gave corroborative testimony and Judge Williams declared the beer forfeited to the state and destruction was ordered.

The complaint against liquors seized at Arthur Reventon's, 15 Pierce street, was then considered. Deputy Chief Brown testified to the seizure of half a barrel of ale, a keg of lager, four bottles of beer and a jug of whiskey. Many empty beer bottles were found in the house, and men had been seen going and coming from the place frequently. Policeman West gave testimony in corroboration. The liquor seized was declared forfeited to the state and warrant for destruction ordered.

James McMahon was arraigned on a charge of assault on George H. Clark of Shannock. He had no lawyer to defend him, and pleaded guilty. He testified that he slapped Clark on the cheek with his open hand and he believed he had provoked that justified the act. His wife told him.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Young Simeon Wanted to Go "Down Stream."

Mr. Editor: While riding a few days ago with a gentleman who was one of Simeon E. Baldwin's classmates at Yale, he told me a laughing incident relating to the judge when he was a college student.

The feature of the story the college boys called concentrated stubbornness; but perhaps, if they could be under the instruction of Theodore Roosevelt, they might modify their verdict and call it inherent reticence.

It appears that Simeon and six of his classmates started in a rowboat to go through the Sound and up the Connecticut river to visit a chum at Northfield.

Of course, it was a long row; and they had not reached the Massachusetts line before Simeon got his mind bent on a retrogressive movement, although all the other boys were enthusiastic in their efforts to complete the journey.

"Boys," said Simeon, "I want to go down stream." They laughed at him for suggesting the abandonment of the trip, after they had gone so far and enjoyed it.

"I tell you," continued Simeon with vehemence, "I'm going down stream!" "Are you, Sim? How?" demanded one of the progressive boys, who was provoked at what he called Simeon's "mutiny."

"I'm going down stream!" emphasized Simeon.

"You are! Are you?" exclaimed the boys, as a chorus; and, with the strenuousness of a certain modern statesman, they plunged their oars again into the water and gave the Yale yell, that served as a whistle to show that the boat had started again for its objective point.

Simeon, with true grit to his last, dipped his oars as sure as you were alive and "backed water" with all his might. But the good boat had more respect for six than for one, and in "double quick time" reached Northfield with Simeon aboard, alive and well.

Simeon was moody, however, but each of the six progressive boys sang the college songs as if a little Simeon!

Now, it seems that Simeon E. Baldwin wants (for a change) to go "up stream" as far as Hartford. He thinks that his trip would be capital to the state.

Shall we "back water" against him November 5th, Mr. Editor, or simply trust that he will "back down stream" by the momentum of the current?
C. H. TALCOTT.
Norwich, Nov. 4, 1910.

Effect of Overeating.
The average dyspeptic does not give more than half an hour to his three meals, since all dyspeptics eat fast. Therefore thousands of people are willing to suffer twenty-three and a half hours every day in order that they may do as they please for half an hour. And that's the way it goes nearly everything else; that's the reason so many people are always being punished.—Atkinson Globe.

His Own Great Foolishness.
Nurdy—Your wife seems to think you'll get bunked off if she lets you out of her sight. You must have once something very foolish to have a woman looking after you like that. But—I did. I married her.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Stamford.—Negotiations are being closed which will result in the sale of the Casino on Suburban avenue to the town of Stamford. The price is to be $100,000.

The Copts of Egypt.
The Copts in Egypt are the bookkeepers and scribes; they are also the jewelers and embroiderers. Their ancient tongue has fallen into disuse and is practically a dead language. They now use Arabic, like all the rest of the nation, but the speech survives in their church service, a part of which is still given in the old tongue, though it is said that even the priests themselves do not always understand what they are saying, having merely learned the sentences by heart, so that they can repeat them as a matter of form.

In Two Divisions.
Men are often divided into educated and ignorant, the rich and the poor, the famous and the unknown, but a division more marked than any other might be made between the strong and the weak. We meet them both in every walk of life. Their birth or education or general surroundings may be the same, but a sharp line divides those whose inclinations govern them. On the one side we see strength, accomplishment and value, on the other weakness, spasmodic and ill directed effort and inefficiency.

A Sign of Life.

A well known professor who had the reputation of erring somewhat on the side of pedantry in regard to the use of the right word in the right place returned home one evening and surprised a burglar at work in his room.

Whipping out a revolver, the latter covered him, saying: "If you move you're a dead man."

"Allow me to remark, my good man," rejoined the professor, "that your statement is absurd. If I move it is excellent proof that I am alive. You really should consider your words a little before using them."

Perfectly Calm.
"Now, remember, William," his wife cautioned when he had found his slipper, "that it is very wrong to punish a child in anger. You must be perfectly calm when you administer the chastisement."

"Oh, I'll be calm all right," he said as he started upstairs, gritting his teeth.

"I'll be the calmest man in seven states, but if you attempt to interfere when he begins to yell I'll yell you too. Confound it, I'm going to show you who is boss around this place!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

In the Paper.
"Did ye bring the paper home, Silas?" asked Mrs. Witherbee.

"Ya-as," said Silas.
"Anything p'tic'lar in it this mornin'?" asked the lady.

"Ya-as," said the farmer. "Tew quarts of peanuts and a bottle of hoss liniment. Kinder thought you and I might have a little spree for supper."—Harper's Weekly.
